A MAN who saved the life of a heart attack victim has revealed he was out on a "doctor's orders" cycle ride at the time – after having had a heart attack himself.

Sukhminder Jouhal was following orders from the cardiac support team at Whittington Hospital, in Archway, when a woman in her 50s collapsed in front of him on a stretch of the New River Path which runs between Alexandra Palace and Wood Green.

Mr Jouhal started chest compressions while another passer-by rang for help.

"I didn't really think about it, I just felt for her pulse – there wasn't one – and then began chest compressions until the medics arrived," he said.

"I don't know who she is, but I do know she survived, which is fantastic."

Medics and police hailed the semi-retired shopkeeper, 60, and awarded him a Royal Humane Society resuscitation certificate last Monday for his heroic actions dating back to October 2014.

Deputy police commissioner Craig Mackey praised Mr Jouhal's quick actions at the ceremony at New Scotland Yard and said he had "undoubtedly saved her life".

Mr Jouhal, of Redston Road, Muswell Hill, said: "It was lovely to get the certificate and see behind the scenes of New Scotland Yard, but the best thing is the woman survived."

Haringey Borough Commander Chief Superin-

Lifesaver: Sukhminder Jouhal collects his Royal Humane Society award from Craig Mackey, the Met Police's deputy commissioner, at New Scotland Yard tendent Victor Olisa said: "The police and the other emergency services depend on members of the public for all sorts of assistance.

"In this instance Mr Jouhal has stepped up, arguably going above and beyond, in an attempt to save the life of another. His past experience, although stressful, clearly put him in the best position to know what to do and provide the best possible care in the circumstances.

"He should be proud of his actions, as we are."

Ruzgar gets buggy boost

A STOLEN disabled toddler's specially-adapted buggy has been replaced by a charity in time for his third birthday.

Little Ruzgar Agirman, who has a life-limiting muscle-wasting condition, celebrated his birthday last Thursday.

The theft of the buggy from the back garden of his Wood Green home a fortnight before had left him virtually housebound.

Ruzgar has spinal muscular atrophy, which means he cannot move or breath properly without the aid of a ventilator and suction machine and is fed through a tube.

The special buggy allows the equipment to be stowed away so he can get out and about with his family and attend regularly weekly appointments at Great Ormond Street Hospital, in London.

The Newlife Foundation for Disabled Children, the largest charity to fund specialist equipment to terminally ill and disabled children in the UK, had supplied it to the family last year.

And after hearing about the theft, the charity swiftly stepped in to provide an emergency replacement until the insurance on the stolen buggy pays for a new one.

His grateful father Serdar Agirman said the buggy was a vital lifeline for Ruzgar.

"It's very hard to transfer him around the home," he said. We have to be careful because of his equipment, so two people have to carry him."

"This is why the buggy is so important. He is always lying down and the buggy is a way to entertain him. We were able to go for walks, which was not possible before.

"I left the buggy in the garden as it was a nice day. I didn't think anything of it. When my wife and I went out the next morning, it was gone."

Borough's new commander outlines her priorities

A WOMAN top cop will be at the helm when she takes over as Haringey's police borough commander later this month.

Detective Chief Superintendent Helen Millichip, the current borough commander in Greenwich, in south London, will replace Chief Supt Victor Olisa, who has held the post since 2013. It is part of a Metropolitan Police shake-up of senior ranks.

Det Chief Supt Millichip will take up the post on June 20. Det Chief Supt Sandra Looby, was the borough's first female borough commander in 2011.

"It will be a privilege to serve in Haringey," she said. "I am looking forward to joining the team and building upon the excellent work that has already been done to reduce crime and help victims.

"I want to work with communities in the borough to continue to impact upon crime, to solve local problems and to deliver high quality policing across the borough."

She joined the Met in 1997 and has served in Islington, Hackney, Newham and Greenwich, as well as in the Counter Terrorism Command.

Chief Supt Olisa, who is moving to become the Met's strategic lead for diversity and inclusion, said: "It has been a tremendous three years for me in Haringey, a time that I have enjoyed immensely and during which I have had the good fortune to work with many extraordinary members of the community and partner agencies and many brilliant officers and staff.

"We have achieved significant reductions in crime, seen confidence in the police increase and developed strong working relationship with many different communities and partner agencies. I shall miss working here greatly."

Cycle plan challenge

CAMPAIGNERS have stepped up their fight against a cycle route on a busy road and are ready for a court showdown.

Save Our Green Lanes has applied for a judicial review of Enfield Council's A105 Cycle Enfield scheme from Palmers Green library to Enfield Town.

The group decided to act following the release of council documents that campaigners say show "negative impacts" on parking, the viability of businesses, air quality, congestion, and bus journey times and safety.

Spokesman Costas Georgiou said: "The council has still not addressed valid concerns. The cycle lanes are bad news for our local community. We have been left with no option but to apply for judicial review proceedings in the High Court. We served the court papers on Enfield Council on Friday."

Campaigners say parking would be lost along much of the route. They also say buses would stop in the middle of the road, rather than in lay-bys, and passengers would have to cross cycle lanes when they get on and off.

Many businesses do not have rear access and claim the changes mean they would not be able to function without deliveries from the front or customers being able to collect takeaway food.

Mr Georgiou, who also chairs the Green Lanes Business Association, said: "Concerns about the cycle lane scheme are making businesses think twice about opening in Palmers Green. We had two empty units in 2013, now we have 12."

The A105 Green Lanes to London Road scheme is part of wider £42million cycling blueprint for London. The cycle lane plans also include Enfield Town, Southbury Road and Hertford Road.

A council spokesman said: "The council has just received notification that a judicial review has been issued. The council does not consider it appropriate to comment as the matter is before the court."

A judicial review is a legal challenge to the way a decision has been made. The hearing will not consider the rights and wrongs of the decision, but whether the right procedure was followed.

A CYCLIST is to ride from Enfield to Bristol in a bid to halt the scheme for protected cycle routes on the borough's main roads.

Justin Mason, of Raleigh Road, Enfield, has set up an online Justgiving page to raise cash to fund a High Court challenge to overturn Enfield Council's plans.

Despite regularly commuting to work in central London by bike, the 46-year-old opposes the Cycle Enfield scheme, which will see one-way Cecil Street in Enfield Town, close to where he lives, become two-way with Church Street, which runs parallel to it, reserved for bikes and buses.

He says that the changes will see pollution and noise levels shoot up in the residential streets around his home, making the streets less safe for him and his children.

"I love being on a bike, but I can't accept the council's proposals as they're a threat to the welfare and health of all who live in the vicinity. For the council to bulldoze this through is not right and must be resisted strongly," he added.

He has been criticised by the Better Streets for Enfield Facebook group, who accuse him of putting his self-interest above others.

But Mr Mason hit back, reiterating his main concern over the volume of traffic which would be displaced from Church Street to Cecil Road and surrounding residential sidestreets, causing pollution and making it significantly more unsafe for adults and children when crossing them.

Food for thought: Morgan Bolus, four, contemplates his lunch

The best possible taste

CHILDREN at an Enfield primary school tucked into dinner to celebrate the launch of a new kitchen.

The team of staff at Galliard Primary School cook up lunches for 400 pupils every day.

The new £600,000 kitchen at the school, in Galliard Road, Edmonton, was completed in January as part of Enfield Council's plans to provide modern facilities for cooking.

The makeover included new appliances, cooking equipment and storage and the dining room was also spruced up.

Good healthy school food is a key priority, explained Ayfer Orhan, cabinet member for education, children's services and protection.

"School kitchens are a high priority," she said. "They improve our schools and with a big demand for hot, tasty, nutritional meals we know this is a huge contributing factor in children's learning."

"For some children, it is their only meal of the day."

The school's headteacher

Penny Sullivan said: "Children enjoy their lunchtimes and have great fun choosing appetising meals and learning social skills having lunch together."

"We also encourage children to learn about the food they are eating, where it comes from, how it is grown and what is good for them."

Dishes include honey and soy salmon, tangy fennel and dill coleslaw and carrot and beetroot cake.

School dinners took a leading place on the menu in 2005 when TV chef Jamie Oliver campaigned about improving lunches offered to pupils across the country.

Strict nutritional rules were introduced in primary schools in 2008.

Enfield Catering Services provide 20,000 meals for pupils every school day. Enfield was rated fifth out of 32 boroughs in last autumn's Good Food for London table results.

It has also picked up the Food for Life catering mark for serving ethically sourced fresh food cooked on site and the Marine Stewardship Council accreditation for using sustainable fish.

It has also been recognised for using free range eggs and dairy goods from animals which have access to pasture.

Ms Orhan said: "Sourcing quality ingredients, our cooks produce carefully balanced meals and have a string of industry recognition awards to show for it."

"IT'S about improving the look of the area through horticulture," is lifetime gardener Dennis Lushey's view of how Enfield in Bloom can make the borough a nicer place to live.

Every year, Mr Lushey, alongside his team of dedicated, green-fingered volunteers, tours the borough in a bid to find the blooming best gardeners in Enfield.

Enfield in Bloom is an annual competition run by volunteers and sponsored by businesses including Tottenham Hotspur Football Club, whose training ground is located on the borough's northern borders in Whitewebbs Lane.

Armed with a sophisticated knowledge of anything that needs soil, sun and water to thrive, the team of volunteers and lecturers from Capel Manor College, in Bullsmoor Lane, inspect the candidates queuing up to take part in the competition.

"When people take care of their gardens it really improves the look of the borough," Mr Lushey told the Advertiser at the launch of this year's competition at Enfield Civic Centre, in Silver Street, last Wednesday.

"Walking down a street with nice flowers, well-maintained shrubs and lawns, everyone knows it makes it a nicer place to live and work."

He said the environment can be improved by doing things as simple as having window boxes or bright, colourful container plants outside your home.

But with more and more young people saying they have no gardening skills, Mr Lushey explains that is why the Enfield in Bloom teams spend time nurturing a love of growing things among schoolchildren.

"We go into primary schools, the children show us what they've grown and they are so proud," he said. "It takes quite a long time to judge in schools because each child gets so passionate about what they've done, but it is worth it seeing their passion and joy."

A myth he is keen to dispel is that it is only people who own their own homes who can make their gardens competition ready.

"A lot of our entrants are renters," he added.

"You don't need to own a garden to make an effort to make your property and garden attractive."

"Everyone can take pride in their area, in their environment, in where they live, and we're encouraging people that if they want a nicer area then they can take things into their own hands."

Prize-winning cacti prove a real crowd-pleaser

PLANT lovers have been showing off their weirdly charming wonders to green-fingered admirers.

Scores of cacti, more suited to a desert landscape than north London, were on show at Capel Manor Gardens, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, for three days over the bank holiday weekend.

Growers had 69 classes to enter in the hope their prized plants would scoop a prize at the Lea Valley branch of the British Cactus and Succulent Society event.

The society is devoted to growing desert plants and show secretary Roger Day was delighted with the turnout. He said: "It went quite well and we were very lucky with the weather."

"We had a lot of plants and it was good to see a lot of children being enthusiastic about cacti. I think they like them because they are so different."

The society's next meeting is at Capel Manor next Wednesday (June 8) at 7.30pm.

Guilty: Eren Hayser, left, who will be sentenced along with Ozcan Eren, Nathan Mason, Gokay Sogucakli and Izzet Eren, who has been jailed for firearms-related charges

AN Enfield man who was part of a gang involved in a foiled plot to spring a dangerous criminal from a prison van is facing a lengthy jail term after being found guilty by a jury.

Eren Hayser, 25, of Kettering Road, Enfield Wash, was one of the five-strong team which Izzet Eren assembled to ambush the van taking him from Wormwood Scrubs prison to Wood Green Crown Court, where he was to be sentenced on firearms-related charges on December 11 last year.

But police had been tipped off and were lying in wait having planted a listening device in one of the vehicles in which three of the gang members were parked up close to the court.

As armed officers swooped on their vehicles to thwart the attempted break-out, one of the gang, Jermaine Baker, 28, from Tottenham, was shot

Five wait for sentencing over plot to free prisoner from van dead by a police firearms officer. His death is the subject of an investigation by the Independent Police Complaints Commission.

Hayser, the only member of the gang to deny charges of conspiring in the escape plot, was convicted at Woolwich Crown Court last Thursday.

He was acquitted of possession of an imitation firearm

A second conspirator, Izzet Eren's cousin Ozcan Eren 31, of Wood Green, had denied the same charges, but changed his plea and pleaded guilty at Woolwich Crown Court on May 18.

Izzet Eren, 32, and two other members of the gang, Nathan Mason, 30, of South Tottenham, and Gokay Sogucakli, 19, of Tottenham, pleaded guilty to the same offences on February 29.

They will all be sentenced at a later date.

The gang hatched the plot to spring Izzet Eren from the prison van as he was due for sentencing having earlier pleaded guilty to several offences after being stopped on a stolen motorbike in an intelligence-led police operation in Stamford Hill in October last year.

Eren had a loaded pistol in a bag and police recovered a loaded Skorpion sub machine gun in a bag dropped nearby.

His sentencing for these firearms-related charges went ahead after the failed plot to free him and he was jailed for 14 years on December 11, along with accomplice Amoyas Gyamfi, 29.

Det Chief Supt Tom Manson, from the Met Police's Serious and Organised Crime Command, said: "The attempt to free Eren Izzet was a bold, well-planned and carefully thought-out conspiracy bearing all the hallmarks of a professional crime."

Boy, two, hurt in road accident

A TODDLER has been taken to hospital after being in collision with a car.

The two-year-old boy was treated at the scene in Fore Street, Edmonton, for his injuries following the accident shortly after 7pm on Monday. The extent of the injuries has not been confirmed.

London Ambulance Service said: "We were called at 7.09pm on May 30 to reports of a road traffic collision involving a vehicle and a pedestrian near Fore Street, Edmonton.

"We sent an ambulance crew, an incident response officer, a single responder by car and London's Air Ambulance. The first of our medics arrived at the scene within five minutes.

"We treated a child at the scene for a head injury and took him to hospital."

Residents given Commons chance to press case for lorries diversion

Campaigners: Peter Bostock, Balvinder Singh, Rosemary Mehmet, Norman Bennett and Hazel Drewett, of the Action Group for Bullsmoor Lane

Transport chief agrees to Bullsmoor Lane meeting

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

SAFETY campaigners are meeting the Secretary of State for Transport to renew calls for a road to divert M25-bound lorries away from an accident blackspot.

Patrick McLoughlin has agreed to meet campaigners at the House of Commons on Monday, June 27.

Mr McLoughlin visited Bullsmoor Lane last April just before the 2015 general election to hear residents' concerns about the volume of lorries on the road.

In December, a pedestrian died after he was involved in a collision with a lorry in Bullsmoor Lane.

Last month, Enfield North MP Joan Ryan pressed Mr McLoughlin in the Commons about his pre-election pledge to prioritise building a new access road to the M25 in a bid to divert lorries from the residential area.

The Labour MP said as Mr McLoughlin had visited Bullsmoor Lane to see for himself "he knows that it is being used as a slip road off the M25 – it is a residential area with a very serious accident record as a route to central London."

She asked him to meet residents' representatives to help a find a solution.

Mr McLoughlin said: "There does seem to be some confusion over whether this is a matter for Transport for London or for Highways England. "That is no answer to the people who are suffering from the problems. It is a very difficult area to deal with because of all the residential implications, but we will have that meeting."

Save Bullsmoor Lane campaigner Rosemary Mehmet, who will be at the meeting, said Mr McLoughlin counted the amount of traffic when he visited the site last year.

"He said he could see what the problem was," she said. "He counted traffic last year."

She said that campaigners would be telling Mr McLoughlin that one death was too many and wanted to see an access road between Mollison Avenue and Bullsmoor Lane.

She added: "It also has a knock-on effect all through the borough. As I'm looking out of the window now, the traffic is at a standstill."

Another campaigner Norman Bennett, who will also be at the meeting, raised concerns about safety in the 1970s.

The first section of the M25 between South Mimms and Potters Bar was opened in 1975.

Enfield Council Conservative group leader

REFERENDUM Day beckons. The EU can be regarded as a club which started up with a straightforward set of objectives promoting trade between members.

More countries, including the UK, successfully applied to join the club. Unlike normal clubs however, it is undemocratic, being ruled by the unelected European Commission and as it became larger, so the club rules and the objectives were changed. The question whether to remain or leave is one that from time to time faces members of all clubs. In the case of the EU, the club is failing on the measures I believe I "joined" for.

Neither the UK Parliament nor our courts is supreme, being subservient to the Commission and European Court of Justice.

The EU should be riding high in the globalised world economy. In fact, many economists have concluded it is lagging well behind many other leading nations including the "new" economies of China and India.

We now have no control over our borders. This has led to migration into the UK on an unprecedented scale – the latest net figures show an influx last year alone of 270,000 (77,000 without a job offer) and increasing year on year. This in turn has led to pressure on our services.

We get no help from the EU towards the necessary infrastructure – for example, additional school places, which cost £66million in Enfield alone over the past two or three years.

We have a choice. We can continue to pay into a failing club whose benefits are now suspect, or do we free ourselves from the bureaucratic and over-regulated nightmare that the EU has become?

They just want to make money

FURTHER to the statement by Elaine Perkins ("Money Box", Advertiser, May 18), I totally agree – how on earth are you supposed to cross the A10 without going on the junction box?

Enfield Council is so greedy. It wants money from everywhere and everyone. It is absolutely ridiculous.

Sunil Vyas

'Ridiculous': The box junction on the A10 Great Cambridge Road

Best idea is to rip it up and start again

AFTER visiting the exhibition at Palmers Green Library on the latest Mini-Holland proposals, I can say that Enfield Council has listened to concerns of residents and tweaked cycle lanes along the A105 from Palmers Green to Enfield Town.

The purpose of spending £40million-plus of taxpayers' money is to encourage motorists to switch to cycling, improve air quality and reduce obesity.

The council claims that the proposals will result in improved air quality and that potential health benefits will be likely to arise from an increase in cycling.

However, as stationary traffic is a major cause of atmospheric pollution. Air quality along the A105 area would be more likely to suffer.

With bus and car journeys taking longer, the economic impact will be harmful to shops along the whole route.

As for obesity, how about maintaining our walkways to a safer, higher standard, to encourage people to walk short distances to school and the shops?

Let's at least be grateful the council has listened. Most bus boarders will now have a buffer before stepping into cycle lane.

Some central islands being withdrawn will now be replaced with zebra crossings. Blue badge holders will now be able to set down and pick up on cycle lanes and I am told passengers boarding and alighting from buses will have priority over cyclists.

The council has made small improvements – but the biggest bravest improvement of all would be to scrap the Mini-Holland scheme and start again.

Cycle Enfield offers a more people-friendly future

OUR group Better Streets for Enfield seeks a people-friendly borough, with streets designed in a balanced way to meet the needs of everyone who uses them.

We support the Cycle Enfield plans, so that:

- Streets cater for walking, cycling and public transport as well as driving.

- High streets are pleasant places to spend time as well as money to help local businesses.

- Children can safely play, walk and cycle, including to school, for better health, well-being and independence.

- Cycling is a safe, convenient travel option for all ages and abilities.

- Fewer short journeys are made by car, helping reduce air pollution and free up road space

- People can follow healthier, more active lifestyles, saving money for our NHS

- Residential streets can be communities rather than conduits for traffic.

Enfield today is highly car-dependent and the design of the roads makes travel difficult by any other means.

As a result we suffer from pollution, congestion and unhealthy lifestyles.

Now is the time for change. Make better streets for a better Enfield.

NHS should look elsewhere for savings

YOU have performed a great service to the community by exposing the shameful decision of the Enfield Clinical Commissioning Group to discriminate against the poorest people by forcing them to pay for prescriptions which successive governments – both Labour and Tory – have always decreed should be freely available ("Poorest warning over plans to cut free prescriptions", Advertiser, May 25).

Just as the present government has done a U-turn, dropped plans to cut tax credits for the working poor and hit benefits for people with disabilities, so our local health bosses should drop this shameful attack on the most vulnerable in our community and look elsewhere to save money.

I would remind the CCG that when they were given the money and responsibility for organising our health services in July 2010, the then Secretary of State for Health said: "Patients will be at the heart of the new NHS."

"Our guiding principle will be 'no decisions about me, without me.' We will bring NHS resources and NHS decision-making as close to the patient as possible."

EU's leaders out of control

WHY should we continue to support the EU as it continues to slide down the slippery slope economically and causes inhabitants such grief – unemployment etc?

Looking at how it has shot itself in the foot, re Greece, Italy etc, it should be obvious that it is an unwieldy conglomerate whose leaders have lost control.

They cannot even agree on a trade agreement with the US and cannot control donations to so-called needy countries.

Let us stop this folly and get out now. Everyone should read the EU report on fraud.

Fighting for the green belt: Residents at the site on the corner of Enfield Road and Cotswold Way

Developers under fire for rejecting ecological survey

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

AN MP says that pleas for an ecological study on a controversial green belt site have been snubbed.

Joan Ryan, the MP for Enfield North, had backed demands for campaigners to be allowed to carry out a biodiversity survey on fields that developers want to build on.

But Fairview New Homes, who manage the site off Enfield Road and Cotswold Way, in Oakwood, have turned down her request that Enfield Road Watch should be allowed to conduct the study.

Such surveys help give local authorities a bigger picture of the issues before them when they decide whether planning applications should be backed or thrown out.

Fairview manage the site on behalf of owners the Church of England's Diocese of London.

Earlier this year, the company ditched plans for 300 homes, a college and a school on the site.

Ms Ryan said: "Fairview say they want to be open and transparent and they have the opportunity to do both here and they are not taking it. We all have a vested interest in protecting green belt open space. There has to be a very good and special case if green belt land is to be built on.

"The onus is on Fairview to make that case and they are not making that case and are being obstructive towards residents who are trying to make a specialist case for not building on the green belt."

Enfield Road Watch says the fields are rich with various plants and an abundance of wildlife, which has included red kites and bats.

Ms Ryan added: "The residents are going to this trouble because they care about the environment."

Ian D'Souza, chairman of Enfield Road Watch, criticised Fairview, saying: "Where is their community spirit? And what are they trying to hide?"

He said that a letter received from Fairview indicated several required surveys had already been carried out.

The Advertiser contacted Fairview for a comment on Tuesday – but it did not respond by the time we went to press.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Photographer Jess sets her sights on cancer charity run

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A WOMAN who discovered she had cancer days before her brother-in-law died of the disease is urging others to put on their trainers and raise money in a charity run.

Photographer Jess Chu was told she had cancer after she underwent surgery to have her thyroid removed. By a cruel twist of fate she heard the news just a day before her brother-in-law Igi Salinas was told he had T-cell lymphoma of the kidney.

But while 37-year-old Jess, of Gordon Hill, Enfield, learnt the disease had been caught in time, Igi was not so lucky and died shortly afterwards.

Surgeons found two cancerous tumours on Jess's thyroid and were able to remove them.

However, she chose to keep her news to herself for a month as the family suffered the loss of Igi.

Ms Chu said: "My diagnosis came as such a shock. I had gone to the hospital on my own thinking it was just a routine appointment to check my scar and that's when they told me.

"The very next day Igi was diagnosed with cancer. He was already quite ill and all of us were really worried, so I chose not to tell my sister Allie at first."

She said that she "felt fraudulent" after her brother-in-law died.

"I felt incredibly guilty that I had got off so lightly while Igi passed away," she said.

Running for life: Jess Chu is urging other women to take part in the charity fundraiser in Trent Park later this month

Three years later Allie, who lives in Oxford, was diagnosed with the same cancer as her sister and underwent surgery. She has since been given the all-clear.

Now Ms Chu, who has two children – Lili, five and 22-month-old Charlie – and her sister are channelling their energy into raising funds and awareness of cancer to help spare others the pain they have faced.

Ms Chu is encouraging other women to join the Cancer Research UK Race for Life event in Trent Park, Oakwood, on Sunday, June 12.

The photographer, who runs her own business specialising in children's and wedding photography, added: "You cannot beat the sense of achievement you feel when you cross the finish line, no matter how long it takes you to get round or how you do it – whether you are running or walking – because you are part of something special.

"Cancer can completely rip your world to shreds and we are taking part to raise funds for the vital research that is needed to help people survive."

Runners can walk or run a 5km or 10km route in Trent Park from 11am. It costs £14.99 for adults to sign up and £10 for children, with free places for under-sixes.

Anyone who is looking for a longer challenge can sign up for a full and/or half-marathon event at Lee Valley Park on Sunday, September 4.

Registration for the half-marathon costs £29.99 and it is £39.99 to participate in the 26.2-mile full marathon.

Further details are available via raceforlife.org or by calling 0300 123 0770.

Warm tributes for pioneering GP Iris

By Julia Gregory
julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A FORMER Edmonton GP, who was interned by the Japanese during World War II before becoming the first woman head of the casualty department of a central London hospital, has died, aged 91.

Dr Iris Krass was born in Hong Kong, where her father worked for a finance company and her mother was an English teacher at a boys' prep school.

Her family tried to flee at the beginning of the war – but their ship was intercepted by the Japanese navy at Manila and she was interned in the Philippines for the rest of the war.

Her mother and brother were separated from Iris and her sister. The girls were aged just 11 and nine at the time.

Her story was included in the book Stolen Childhood, the Untold Story of the Children Interned by the Japanese.

The interned children were taught by other internees and after the war Iris went to grammar school in Lincolnshire.

She secured a place at St Thomas's Hospital, in central London, where she was one of the few women training to be a doctor. Her friend Dr June Keyte said: "She was very proud of being the first woman head of the casualty department at St Thomas's."

Proud: Dr Iris Krass

"She later worked for the civil service in a specialist post and finally decided to spend the rest of her career as a very well-loved GP in Edmonton."

She worked as a GP at the Dover House Surgery, in Bolton Road, Edmonton, and was an avid reader of alternative interpretations of Shakespeare.

Dr Keyte added that she was also interested in antique ceramics and learned how to restore them.

She was a keen traveller in the UK and abroad.

Dr Krass was also an active member of the Enfield and District branch of Soroptomist International and was involved in the club's work to help women and girls in the UK and support girls in India and Africa get access to education.

Her funeral service will be held on Tuesday, June 21, at Grange Park Methodist Church, in Old Park Ridings, starting at 11.30am.

Bidders compete to run care home

Top stuff: The new care home development in Old Road

By Clare Casey
newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

BIDDERS are vying to run a new care home which is being built to meet the needs of the borough's ageing population.

The new development, in Old Road, Enfield Highway, will be home to 70 elderly people, with plans for specialist dementia care at the site.

Current residents at Coppice Wood Lodge and Bridge House, both council-run residential care homes, are poised to move in when building work is completed in November.

Alev Cazimoglu, Enfield Council's cabinet member for health and adult social care, said: "This new, purpose-built care home for older people will contribute to ensuring the council has sufficient residential and nursing care capacity to meet the needs of Enfield's residents moving forward.

"The new care home will be a bright, modern building with excellent facilities, specifically designed to meet residents' needs. It will be fully equipped with adapted en suite bathrooms, activity rooms and a landscaped garden complete with seating areas and wheelchair accessible paths. The 70 bedrooms will be split into groups of 10-14, each with their own lounge and dining rooms, which will help provide a homely environment for the people who will live here."

Last October, the council agreed to build another care home to meet the growing demand.

Staff from the existing care homes will also transfer to the new building when it is opened.

By any reckoning the next few months are a bonanza for all sports fans.

Of course the Euros and the Olympics are the blue riband tournaments but they will overlap many of the years most anticipated events such as the Tour de France, Ascot, The Open Golf and Wimbledon.

And on top of that Englands young and exciting cricketers will be taking on Sri Lanka and then Pakistan.

All the home rugby union sides will be touring with Eddie Jones' England in Australia for a three Test series in June. Harry Kane and Jamie Vardy will be spearheading Englands challenge for the Euros in France but Germany and France will lie in wait. Jessica Ennis-Hill and Mo Farah will be defending their gold medal status in Rio but there is one day to mark in the diary - July 10th will see the Euros final, the Wimbledon final and the British Grand Prix - phew...enjoy!

OPEN DAY

SUNDAY 3 JULY 10.30AM - 1PM

Now is the time to join your local tennis club. Northaw and Cuffley Tennis Club is proud to announce the refurbishment of two of its six all weather courts. Thanks to national funding we now have some of the best facilities for playing tennis in the area. The cash for relaying the courts has come in the form of £80,000 worth of grants and loans from the Lawn Tennis Association and Sports England. The new courts arrive following Great Britain's fantastic achievement in winning the Davis Cup.

All weather tennis courts allow the sport to be played throughout the year - even in the winter. Our membership fees are a lot less than other clubs. We even throw in free balls and free floodlighting. We're a friendly club with an excellent clubhouse and welcome everyone, young and old, beginners to experienced players.

We're on the edge of Cuffley with some wonderful rural views. The club welcomes juniors as well as adults and offers coaching facilities at all levels.

Bog standard: St Monica's Players extract the urine

Flushed with success

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

AN all-singing, all-dancing musical titled Urinetown? Surely, someone's taking the proverbial?

An award-winning Broadway smash despite its off-putting moniker, this darkly amusing satire is being staged by St Monica's Players amateur dramatics society at Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, Edmonton, for a four-day run from Wednesday, June 15, to Saturday, June 18.

The plot is set in a dystopian urban future when, following a catastrophic 10-year drought, citizens of Cladwell are forced to pay to pee. Private loos are banned, replaced by privatised public conveniences operated by a malevolent corporation run by corrupt tycoon Caldwell B Cladwell.

Those caught trying to avoid the tinkle tariff are banished to a mysterious place called Urinetown.

But a rebel movement emerges and overthrows the tyranny, so the oppressed masses are able to relieve themselves for free again.

Mixed in is a love story as the idealist renegade leader Bobby Strong falls for the boss's beautiful daughter, who joins the revolution against her dad.

The show satirises the legal system, capitalism, social irresponsibility, populism, bureaucracy, corporate mismanagement and municipal politics as well as parodying musical theatre itself.

"Urinetown is unique," said director Warren McWilliams.

"With so many modern musicals being lightweight and fluffy, it's great to have something with a bit of substance to it.

"Its Brechtian tones have the audience questioning who's right and who's wrong and what the consequences of our actions are.

"But rather cleverly Urinetown manages to do it while you sit tapping your feet to the music in fits of laughter," he added.

A fine bromance from Black

THE NICE GUYS (15, 116 mins)

GOOD things come to those who wait. Every decade, filmmaker Shane Black unspools a deliciously off-kilter buddy action comedy that plays fast and loose with the conventions of the genre.

In 1996, he penned The Long Kiss Goodnight, starring Geena Davis and Samuel L Jackson, which metamorphosed a picture-perfect suburban mom into a finely honed killing machine.

In 2005, he repeated the feat and also sat in the director's chair for the potty-mouthed murder mystery Kiss Kiss Bang Bang, headlining Robert Downey Jr and Val Kilmer.

Now, Black strikes it lucky for a third time with the unlikely comic pairing of Russell Crowe and Ryan Gosling in The Nice Guys, a hare-brained missing persons caper set in sexually liberated 1977 Los Angeles.

The script delivers big, throaty laughs from the cynical opening – “Marriage is buying a house with someone you hate!” – and adroitly juggles physical and verbal humour, inflicting injuries and indignities on his leading men for our sport and entertainment.

It's a groovy kind of bromantic love and Crowe and Gosling relish the to and fro of the snappy dialogue as they gleefully contend with the fashions of the era.

Jackson Healy (Crowe) is a hired heavy, who beats up perverts and stalkers with his knuckleduster.

A young woman called Amelia Kuttner (Margaret Qualley) pays him to scare off

low-rent private detective Holland March (Gosling), who has been asking for her around town.

The first meeting of these two men ends in bloodshed and broken bones, but Jackson and Holland reluctantly agree to work together when Amelia subsequently vanishes without trace.

“Why don't you invite him in?” asks Holland's precocious daughter Holly (Angourie Rice) when Jackson turns up at their door.

“No animals in the house, sweetheart,” retorts the investigator, bearing the physical scars of their previous encounter.

The breadcrumb trail of evidence leads to Amelia's fearsome mother, Judith Kuttner (Kim Basinger), who works for the United States Department of Justice and pleads with Jackson and Holland to locate and protect her child.

Unfortunately, a hitman called John Boy (Matt Bomer) is also on the trail of Amelia – and Holland also needs to solve the perplexing mystery of porn actress Misty Mountains (Murielle Telio), who was apparently seen alive two days after she died in a car accident.

The Nice Guys doesn't quite soar to the dizzy heights of Black's previous escapades, but he comes close, retaining an enviable ability to conjure jaw-dropping one-liners out of nowhere – as when the central duo are detained by a police officer who is simply following the rulebook.

“You know who else was just following orders? Hitler!” counters Jackson.

The central plot is a morass of crosses, double crosses, bluffs and coincidences that intrigues and bamboozles, untangling itself in the closing frames with aplomb.

LUXURY NEW HOMES IN HIGH CROSS

A new five-bedroom showhome is now open at David Wilson Homes' prestigious Canterbury Park development near Ware

Known as the Moorecroft, this versatile family home with large open plan kitchen/dining room has French doors opening out to the garden. The dual aspect lounge also opens onto the garden, while a separate study and a cloakroom are also located on the ground floor. Four of the five bedrooms are doubles including the master bedroom on the top floor which has an en-suite and large walk-in dressing room. There is a family bathroom on the first floor and bedroom two also has an en-suite.

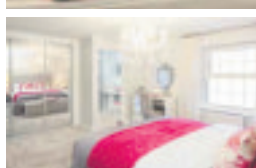

Glenn Copper, senior sales manager at David Wilson Homes North Thames, said: "We have a range of superb family homes and visiting the showhome will give people a taste of life at Canterbury Park. As well as looking around, visitors will also have the opportunity to speak to our knowledgeable sales advisers who will be on hand to offer advice and answer any questions."

Once completed, Canterbury Park will feature a total of 57 four and five-bedroom homes set among green open spaces. The homes have been designed to complement the development's village setting and rural surroundings. Residents will be able to make the most of village life in High Cross with plenty of walks and cycle routes on the doorstep while there is also a local pub. The historic town of Ware is within easy reach, just three miles away, where there is a selection of shops and restaurants as well as the train station with its direct link to London.

Peter Cunningham of Lanes New Homes commented: "All the home styles at Canterbury Park including the Hurst shown here have proved popular since the showhome opened and there is currently only one five-bedroom Moorecroft plot for sale priced at £824,950. Other styles of four-bedroom homes are available now from £514,950."

David Wilson Homes has been awarded the maximum five-star official rating from the Home Builders Federation (HBF) for the seventh year in a row. The news was announced after more than 45,000 new homebuyers across the country took part in this year's HBF customer satisfaction survey.

Taking the expensive option

By Ed Wiseman

WHEN you think of Volkswagen, you think of Golf. The legendary family hatch has been the German brand's best performer in the UK for years, pursued by the slightly smaller Polo. In third place is the Tiguan, an unsung hero of Wolfsburg's expansive range.

The latest generation of this compact SUV is based on the MQB platform that forms the foundation of the Golf and Passat, as well as other VW Group cars from Seat and Skoda.

It's been upgraded visually and borrows in-car tech from Audi, making the Tiguan's interior one of the most up-to-date in its sector. All of this is a huge improvement on the already-good Tiguan, which had just begun to feel dated.

The Tiguan's chiselled, Germanic features set it apart from more fluid-looking rivals. It's a handsome car and has much more road presence than the outgoing generation, which didn't benefit from Volkswagen's current design language. Short overhangs at the front and rear are hugely beneficial off-road and add to the chunky, utilitarian aesthetic of this fundamentally road-orientated car.

The inside of the car is largely well-built, but in comparison to the price tag (about £25,000 for a sensible Tiguan), the materials used are disappointing in places. Beige plastic dominates the front below knee-height, although the seats are fetching and the soft-touch plastic feels built to last.

Volkswagen's image has been undeniably dented by its emissions scandal, but that's unlikely to put buyers off.

The VW badge is still an upmarket – if conventional – choice. The upcoming Seat Ateca, which is mechanically similar but has a much lower starting price, could represent better value for buyers who like the Tiguan, but aren't fussed about brand. There's more room in the Tiguan than before, but tall people will find the back seats cramped.

The boot can theoretically hold more than 600 litres of luggage, depending on the exact position of the adjustable back seats, which can be adjusted or folded down with a tug of a small, spring-loaded tab – a very user-friendly system. When the seats are folded down, the Tiguan boasts 1,655 litres of space, handy for those garden centre trips.

An advanced info-tainment system is available on the Tiguan. The instrument binnacle is digital, visually emulating a conventional speedometer and rev counter, but with much more flexibility. The driver can choose to display Google Maps, including satellite imagery – and while this often duplicates information found on the centre console touchscreen, it's a futuristic touch that helps maximise time spent looking at the road. A head-up display, showing the car's current speed, in comparison to the prevailing speed limit, is another driver-orientated safety improvement.

Volkswagen occupies a different market position to key rivals. The Qashqai, which continues to outsell its opposition quite convincingly, is an excellent car, but has a cheaper image. Similarly, offerings from Kia and Hyundai are very competent choices, but lack badge appeal. Yet the Tiguan isn't as posh as the Evoque or Discovery Sport – it's somewhere in between.

Prices for the Tiguan are comfortably higher than those for the Ateca, SEAT's MQB-based SUV. In fact, the Tiguan is an expensive choice, carefully positioned above most of its real competitors and with an options list that threatens to push it into a daunting price bracket.

The Mazda CX-5 is just as good and much cheaper.

WALKER: I CAN STILL IMPROVE

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

KYLE WALKER believes that he still has plenty of room for improvement despite having had what he feels was his best season to date with Tottenham Hotspur.

The right-back, who is currently away with England preparing for the forthcoming European Championships in France, was a pivotal figure for Spurs during the recent campaign which saw them finish third in the Premier League.

But, despite having been pleased with the way he performed – following two years which had seen him plagued by injury – Walker believes that he is still far from the finished article.

“It’s been great to be a part of such a special team, with youth, excitement, energy and just a willingness to work hard in every game,” he said.

“Last season has probably been one of those ones where I’ve topped when I got the young player of the year award – obviously you’re not always going to be at the forefront of everyone’s minds with Harry Kane banging in all the goals and Dele Alli coming on to the scene and doing fantastically well, but personally I’ve been happy.

“Obviously we did well as a team too, but I still think there’s a lot more to come from me. I’m 26 now so I’m not a young kid any more.

“Hopefully these are the prime years of my career and I can push forward and win some medals with Tottenham.”

Meanwhile, Spurs have confirmed that they will play their home Champions League matches at Wembley Stadium next season – with an option to play all their home games there the following campaign while they build their new ground.

Ongoing work on their new stadium – which will overlap the site of their current home – means that White Hart Lane will struggle to meet UEFA requirements to hold Champions League matches next season.

And, as a result of this Spurs – who hope to have their new home ready in time for the start of the 2018-19 season – have come to an agreement with Wembley National Stadium Limited to use the ground for their return to Europe’s premier club competition.

Chairman Daniel Levy said: “We are delighted that, working in partnership with WNSL and the Football Association, we have been able to reach this agreement.

“Given the current reduction in capacity at White Hart Lane for next season and the ticketing requirements for the Champions League, playing at Wembley will mean that we can continue to accommodate all of our existing season ticket holders.

“Our season ticket waiting list is over 50,000 so this now also offers us a great opportunity to provide more of our supporters with a chance to see the team play live during our Champions League campaign.

“Importantly, as we know it was our fans’ preference, it means that we can continue to play our home matches in London during our season away from White Hart Lane.”

Not the finished article: Kyle Walker believes that he can still improve despite his good form for Spurs

Ujah has high hopes of Olympic spot

SPRINTER Chijindu Ujah admits his appearance at the World Athletics Championships last year has done wonders for his confidence.

Ujah, who competes for Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club and is the youngest British sprinter to have broken the ten-second barrier for the 100metres, reached the semi-finals in Beijing last August, before becoming British indoor champion earlier this year.

The 22-year-old is in with a strong chance of making the Team GB side heading to Rio for the Olympic Games this summer, and will go into his next few meetings with those dreams at the forefront of his mind.

And with experience of competing on the world stage already under his belt, Ujah is confident that this could be his year to shine.

“For me there’s no experience like the World Championships,” said Ujah, who is the reigning British Universities and Colleges Sports 100m champion. “I feel everything up to that point there was nothing like it.

“Every major championships or whatever I had been to was nothing like a World Championship semi-final.

“There was a lot more at stake, I was like wow, these are people you see on the circuit and they are all buddy with you but then when you get into the cauldron it was a bit tense.

“What I’ve learned is that when everyone is a bit tense I’m going to be a bit more relaxed. That will help me, because I felt I was tense in the semi-final.

“It’s crazy to say but I feel like I have a bit of experience at the age of 22 so I want to build on that, regardless of what I do this year, for next year.”

British Universities and Colleges Sport (BUCS) is the national governing body for higher education sport in the United Kingdom, organising leagues and competitions for more than 150 institutions across 52 different sports.

Supported by Deloitte, BUCS offers programmes to athletes from a grass roots level through to Commonwealth and Olympic Games hopefuls www.bucs.org.uk

Harris in the runs for in-form Hornsey

JAMIE HARRIS scored an unbeaten century as high-flying Hornsey romped to a nine-wicket win at Harrow St Mary’s in Division Two of the Middlesex County Cricket League on Saturday.

The hosts decided to bat first and posted a respectable looking total of 205 before being dismissed with four balls of their 45 overs remaining. Ajay Soni led the way with 54, while Jack Bruce (5-48) was the pick of the bowlers.

But it soon became apparent that their total was insufficient as Hornsey’s openers put them on track for victory.

Harris (112 not out) played the leading role, but he received excellent support from Paul Weekes (65) as they eased to 208-1.

Elsewhere in the second division, Highgate suffered a comprehensive seven-wicket defeat at Acton.

Highgate could only make 161 batting first, and an unbroken stand of 110 for the fourth wicket between Andrew Curtis (79 not out) and Sahil Kher (51 not out) guided Acton to 162-3 in reply.

However, there was disappointment for North

Middlesex as they were beaten by three wickets at Richmond in the Premier Division.

The visitors lost early wickets after deciding to bat first, but Mitchell Murray (61) and Evan Flowers (31) rebuilt the innings well and they were able to get up to 198. David Burton and Matt Nicholson took four wickets each.

Ben Compton (59) and Oli Tame (48) then put Richmond in a strong position before a flurry of wickets left the outcome in the balance, but the hosts held their nerve and made it to 199-7 with an over to spare.

Meanwhile, North London secured an excellent six-wicket win at home to Winchmore Hill in Division Three.

Tom Wakeford (3-33) led the way with the ball as the high-flying visitors were dismissed for 136 and Will Lake’s unbeaten 47 ensured they encountered few problems in reaching 137-4 in reply.

North Middlesex host Southgate on Saturday, while Hornsey entertain Wembley, Highgate are at home to Barnes and North London visit Middlesex Tamil Sports and Social Club.
